ABOUT

Trish Wilkinson

Patricia Wilkinson is the coauthor of Brain Stages: How to Raise Smart, Confident Kids and Have Fun Doing It. Trish is also the mother of two children, she taught elementary and middle school for more than 23 years, and she's a total science nerd who keeps up with the latest brain research because studies continually confirm her Brain Stages Thrive Framework.

Trish developed effective, practical tools to raise her own children—who suffered with attention, anxiety, and auditory processing challenges—into successful adults. With these tools, she also gave hundreds of students a solid academic, social, and emotional foundation.

She now coaches parents and facilitates life-changing workshops and courses, for parents and professionals, to help children thrive in our complicated world. It's amazing what can happen when years of creativity and practical experience merge with thousands of hours of poring over the latest brain research.

"I believe, with the right tools, EVERY parent can raise children who thrive—even in today's complicated, competitive world."
